ANNOTATION

for the graduate work of Shimanskiy Artem Sergeevich

« CMS to present and promote university research works on the Internet»

This thesis is dedicated to creating an integrated system for the presentation and promotion of university research works on the Internet, study its features, benefits, and content management systems analysis as a means of creating Web-resources of scientific papers for submission to university. The paper analyzed the existing content management systems, their advantages and disadvantages presented in scientific papers online. Used and investigated two most common content management system used to create Web-resources - WordPress and Drupal. The process of creating and configuring the integrated system of systems based on WordPress and Drupal, as optimal for use in universities and research process on the example of the empowerment provided by the system. This work is recommended for use as a guide in the creation of integrated resources for the presentation of scientific work in universities and their settings online.

Total of 92 pages, 47 figures, 2 tables, 19 bibliographical items.

Key words: integral resource, Drupal, WordPress, research papers, presentation, online universities.